

Derailing Progress: The Human Impact of the U.S. FY2018 Global Health Budget

In FY2018, an $800 million cut to PEPFAR would mean:

The U.S. government's efforts to fight the global AIDS pandemic through both the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) and the Global Fund have been transformative in the global AIDS response. The Administration has proposed cuts that would decrease global AIDS funding to PEPFAR and USAID by a total of $800 million in Fiscal Year 2018, representing a 17% decrease. This substantial decrease could dismantle hard-fought progress against HIV, resulting in thousands of HIV treatment disruptions for adults and children, new HIV infections, and preventable AIDS-related deaths.

62,057

New sexual transmissions of HIV

836,038

Adults experiencing treatment interruptions resulting in...

131,388

AIDS-related deaths

258,742

Children becoming orphans

57,639

Interruptions in treatment to prevent mother-to-child transmission resulting in...

7,730

Infants being born with HIV

3,865

Child deaths before the age of 2

164,649

Children experiencing treatment interruptions resulting in...

10,511

AIDS-related deaths in children

1,058,326

Total interruptions in treatment

145,764

Total AIDS-related deaths